Help with Honey Bee Swarms

<https://www.explorenature.org/latest-blog/honey-bee-swarms/>

Honey bees usually swarm during warm months. Swarming is how they reproduce the colony and make more colonies in an area. First new queens are started. The old queen quits laying eggs and her abdomen gets smaller so she can fly. When the new queens are ready to emerge, the old queen takes part of the colony and flies away. The bees stay in a tight grouping as they fly. They will land on various places, including buildings, tree branches, and machinery, to rest and give the scout bees a chance to find a new home. As the bees are resting, some bees are continuously flying around. Many beekeepers will remove swarms or assist in their control.

Beekeepers on this list have agreed to be available for this service. If you would like to be contacted for swarm removal but are not on this list, please contact your state inspector.
