INSTRUCTIONS

The processor license allows licensees to produce derivatives that may be included in products for food, fiber, oils, supplements or drugs (excluding THC) for the wholesale or ingredient market. Hemp processors must comply with city, county, and tribal ordinances and laws. The approval of manufactured hemp derived products at the retail level continue to be subject to the laws and regulations of the United States Food and Drug Association (FDA) and the Montana Department of Public Health and Human Services (DPHHS).

An applicant may apply for a license to process hemp floral and root extracts (Part A) and/or to process hemp grain, seed, seed oil and fiber (Part B) on the same application form. Part A is required of persons who process hemp floral or root extracts and the fee is $2,500 per calendar year. Part A also allows for the processing of hemp grain, seed, seed oil and fiber. Part B is voluntary and only allows for the processing of hemp grain, seed, seed oil and fiber, the fee is $1,000 per calendar year. The application period will remain open throughout the year. Persons who have a current and compliant hemp Grower's license can process their own hemp production without a Processor license.

Each physical location that conducts processing must be licensed separately and applied for on a separate form. A physical location is defined as processing and storage/warehouse structures within a 1-mile radius.

A hemp processor is subject to an inspection that may include THC testing, pesticide testing or any other testing requested by law enforcement or the department. All hemp and the products/by-products derived from hemp must comply with state and federal law. THC extracted from hemp plants or hemp floral extraction must be legally disposed of in a manner consistent with state and federal regulations. Manufacturers purchasing from licensed hemp processors in Montana are not required to possess a hemp Processor's license.

Application: Please print clearly or type all required information. If the applicant is a business, please provide the Business License Number on file with the Montana Secretary of State's Office.
